Four Year Colleges and Programs for LD/ADD students

- Structured/Proactive Programs:
 - These programs' services go well beyond those that are legally mandated and the student is provided with a more structured environment that includes low staff/student ratios. They usually have special admissions requirements.

Four Year Colleges and Programs for LD/ADD students

- Self-Directed/Decentralized Programs:

- Usually don't have separate admissions processes and eligibility for services must be established by the provision of disability documentation that meets institutional standards.

East Coast Schools with Structured and Self-Directed Programs

The screenshot shows a Microsoft Word document titled "College programs [Compatibility Mode] - Word". The document content is organized into three columns representing different states: New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Delaware, New York, and Pennsylvania. Each state's list includes various schools, with some names in bold to indicate structured programs. The document is displayed in the Word interface, showing the ribbon with tabs for File, Home, Insert, Design, Layout, References, Mailings, Review, View, and Table Tools. The status bar at the bottom indicates "Page 1 of 1" and "282 words".
